Democrats Oust Republicans from 4 Courthouse Jobs DISALLE WINS; RIGHT-TO-WORK DEFEATED

Gard, Wilson, Stacey, Bell Are Winners

Common Pleas Judge Sharp Wins Judicial Post Again Easily

Apparently agreeing with the Democrats' campaign slogan, "It's time for a change," Columbiana County voters Tuesday put Democrats into four Courthouse offices formerly held by Republicans.

The only actual GOP winner in the voting for Courthouse offices — which followed a nation-wide trend — was Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp of Salem over his opponent, Atty. Robert S. Hartford of East Palestine. However, the judges ran on a non-partisan ticket.

Ousted from office were such GOP courthouse fixtures as I. J. Vorndran of East Liverpool, seeking a fifth term as auditor, and Galen H. Greenisen of Salem, who sought re-election as county commissioner, a post he has held since 1950.

Vorndran lost out to Kenneth Bell of Wellsville, and Greenisen was defeated by Frank C. Wilson of Wellsville.

Wetzel Re-elected State Representative

Columbiana County voters Tuesday returned Clarence L. (Dutch) Wetzel to the state representative post by a margin of 1,035 votes over his opponent, John F. Kelly of Lisbon.

The vote was:
Wetzel 18,993
Kelly 17,958
The victory gives Wetzel, a Republican, a fifth term in that office.

It was Kelly's first attempt to secure the state representative post. He is a business agent for plumbers, steamfitters and construction workers' groups.

Other Courthouse winners were Democrat R. Max Gard of RD 4, Lisbon, over incumbent Richard G. Brian of East Liverpool, unexpired county commissioner term ending Jan. 1, 1961; and Carl L. Stacey of Columbiana over the GOP Clerk of Courts incumbent John W. Peterson of East Palestine.

Winners of the three county judgeships were Luther Donbar of Columbiana, incumbent; James L. MacDonald of RD, Lisbon, and Earl Spalding of East Palestine.

Spurred by the local contests, a hot right-to-work issue and ideal weather, voters turned out in vast numbers. The ballots totaled 39,826, 5,264 under the record 46,090 cast in the 1952 presidential election.

The total county vote in 1956 was 43,276.
Judge Sharp easily retained the common pleas bench over his opponent, winning by an almost two-to-one vote. He has served as judge since Jan. 1, 1941.

The vote was:
Judge Joel H. Sharp 23,016
Robert S. Hartford 12,146
County Auditor Dutch Vorndran, a Republican who was seeking a fifth term, was upset by Wellsville City Council Clerk Kenneth Bell, who also is a grocer. The margin was 2,691.

The vote was:
Bell 19,665
Vorndran 16,974
Another Wellsville Democrat, Frank C. Wilson, a market operator, unseated Galen Greenisen, Salem Republican and prominent farmer, who had been a county commissioner since 1950. This was for the full term. The vote margin was 1,784.

Wilson 19,498
Greenisen 17,498
Richard G. Brian of East Liverpool, named as a commissioner last year after William Southan resigned, was forced to give up the unexpired term when R. Max Gard, the Lisbon antique dealer and onetime Deming Co. worker

County Bonds, Health Levy Are Rejected

Columbiana County voters rejected the county juvenile receiving home bond issue and the county health district levy in balloting Tuesday.

The tabulation on the receiving home bond issue was:
For 13,453
Against 22,943
The count on the health district levy was:
For 8,433
Against 10,310

The bond issue would have provided $125,000 to build a receiving home on land owned by the county near the County Infirmary.
The two-tenth-mill health levy would have provided funds to bolster the operating revenue of the County Health Department.

In keeping with their negative attitude toward issues, county voters also rejected the right-to-work proposal and the metropolitan federation issue.

The vote on the right-to-work issue was:
For 13,255
Against 24,239
The metropolitan amendment elicited the following vote:
For 10,146
Against 20,265

Hays, Blake Back In Office

Win State Senate, Congressional Races

Arthur Blake, Democratic incumbent, resoundingly defeated his Salem opponent, Walter J. Hunston, for the state senator post from the 20th-22nd District, and Wayne L. Hays, Democratic incumbent, swept over Francis Wallace for the 18th District congressional post on Tuesday.

The Blake-Hunston totals, with only two precincts not reporting, are:

Blake	66,959
Hunston	45,234

Hunston was rejected by vote totals of almost two to one in Belmont and Jefferson counties. Of the four counties comprising the district, he led only in Columbiana County.

Total ballots cast in the Hays-Wallace race, also with only two precincts not reporting, are:

Hays	92,251
Wallace	35,153

Hays amassed huge leads in each

Pass; Bonds Fail

EAST PALESTINE — Two operating levies were passed but the fire truck bond issue was rejected when a record number of voters cast their ballots here Tuesday.

Renewal of a one-mill city park maintenance levy was passed for two years by a vote of 1,126 to 866. Voters also approved renewal of the street maintenance levy for two years, 1,205 to 805.

The $35,000 fire truck bond issue was rejected 1,460 to 575.

A total of 2,193 votes were cast, setting a record for an off-year election.

Outdated Measure Is Repealed

Zoning Ordinance Passed by Council

The city's zoning ordinance was passed unanimously by Council on Tuesday night.

It will become effective 10 days after the first publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the city.

The ordinance, which was under consideration for several months, is designed to help govern the future growth of the city by preventing the overcrowding of land, and to promote the health, safety and welfare of the city.

The measure divides Salem into six types of zoning districts. They are: single family residence, general residential, general business, heavy commercial, industrial and transitional.

The major change in the original measure was made at a committee of the whole meeting last Aug. 25 when Council voted to prohibit the construction of gasoline stations in residential sections.

Organized Labor Successful In Defeating Issue

Surge of Ballots May Have Affected GOP Officeholders

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio voters have rejected a right to work proposal by an unmistakably strong majority.

This was the issue that stirred up the electorate and clogged the voting booths.

Organized labor had made a strong drive to bring out the voters, primarily to knock down Issue No. 2, as the proposed constitutional amendment was called.

But, as many Republican party leaders privately feared, the extra surge of ballots also carried many a GOP officeholder out of his job.

Gov. C. William O'Neill had made right to work a major theme of his bid for re-election. He was defeated along with the union shop ban.

In 7,916 of 12,960 polling places, there were 1,103,674 votes against the amendment and 709,261 in favor.

Against Issue No. 2

Democrat Michael V. DiSalle announced early in the campaign that he was against Issue No. 2. That was in line with the Democratic platform. The Republican platform was silent on the subject.

But DiSalle almost ignored the topic in his campaign speeches, spending most of his effort in criticizing the O'Neill administration. He said labor and management would inflict some wounds on each other in the campaign, and by remaining calm on the issue, he could be in a better position to make peace.

Thanks to voters came from organized labor, in the person of Ray Ross of Springfield, executive vice president of the Ohio AFL-CIO Executive Board.

Said he: "The people of Ohio have spoken. They have rejected the attempt of special interest groups to weaken Ohio's trade union movement and endanger the economy of the state. They have declared their faith in the trade

Voters Okay Lisbon School Bond Issue

LISBON — The $135,000 exempted village school bond issue, designed to provide six new rooms at Lincoln School, passed at Tuesday's election by a vote of 1,385 for the issue and 990 against it.

It needed a 55 per cent affirmative vote.

The total vote includes six precincts in the village, three in Center Township and parts of two precincts in Elkrun Township. The Elkrun territory votes were against the passage of the bond issue.

Democrats Sweep Race for Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today the electorate obviously voted for spending advocates in giving the Democrats greater control of Congress.

At a news conference, Eisenhower called any trend toward bigger federal spending a dangerous one.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A voting hurricane, that buffeted Republicans across the nation swept the Democrats into top-heavy command of Congress and governors' office today.

With final tabulations yet to be made in some contests, Democrats appeared likely to gain a total of 12 Senate seats and to rack up more than 40 in the House. They were on the verge of picking up a net of four governorships.

If the trend continued in the late count from Tuesday's balloting, Democratic strength might reach 61 out of the present 96 Senate seats. The party could capture more than 275 of 435 House seats. It might rule 33 of the 48 statehouses.

But the election winds that uprooted Republicans in all sections of the country blew a crazy-quilt pattern that left room for spectacular GOP victories in such places as New York and Arizona. Freshest Face in Decade

In New York, Nelson Rockefeller, the GOP's freshest face in a decade, won a smashing victory over Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman. The velocity of the Rockefeller victory carried along

Washingtonville Voters Reject County Issues

Washingtonville voters Tuesday rejected the $125,000 county detention home bond issue. The vote was 68 for and 207 against the issue.

Also rejected was the Columbiana County general health district two-tenth mill levy. This issue received 93 yes votes and 130 no votes.

The right to work issue was emphatically disapproved, 207 to 70.

Asher Sweeney Trails Brown; Bricker Beaten

Stephen M. Young Pulls Big Upset In Race for Senate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Democratic rip-tide Tuesday engulfed U. S. Sen. John W. Bricker and other Republican office holders in Ohio's election.

The tide sunk GOP Gov. C. William O'Neill and the right-to-work issue on which he and Bricker campaigned for re-election.

Former Congressman Stephen M. Young, Cleveland Democrat, beat Bricker. Stunned Republicans had expected the veteran Ohio senator to win a third six-year term handily.

O'Neill conceded shortly after midnight to Democrat Michael V. DiSalle, former federal price administrator who lost to O'Neill two years ago. DiSalle will be Ohio's first governor to serve a four-year term. The present term is two years.

Nearly complete returns gave DiSalle a bigger victory margin than the 427,855 votes by which O'Neill beat him in 1956.

Opposed Right-to-Work

DiSalle and Young opposed the initiated right-to-work proposal that produced spirited campaigns and a record vote for a non-residential election.

The previous non-presidential high was 2,987,424 in 1950. The Ohio record is 3,761,322 set two years ago.

Favorable weather helped swell the march to the state's 12,960 polling places.

Unofficial returns gave these results.

In 12,803 polling places, Young led Bricker 1,626,816 to 1,483,360.

In 12,803 polling places, DiSalle led O'Neill 1,842,089 to 1,397,174.

In 11,903 polling places, right-to-work lost 1,811,428 to 1,066,892.

Mounting Democratic pluralities broke the Republican monopoly on other elective State House offices. Terms of those offices will be four years, instead of two years, starting next January.

Lost to Donahay

Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, bidding for a sixth term, lost to Democrat John Donahay of Alliance, son of the late U. S. Sen. and Gov. A. V. (Vic) Donahay.

State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy, rounding out his fourth term, bowed to Democrat Joseph T. Ferguson, former state auditor.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, seeking a fifth term, appeared safely ahead of Democrat Asher W. Sweeney of Salem, Army Captain making his first race for state office.

Atty. Gen. William Saxbe waged a sea-saw battle but was losing to Democrat Mark McElroy of Cleveland, former state legislator.

Two Ohio Supreme Court judges won re-election for six-year terms.

Hundreds Jam DiSalle's Home

Most of Family Present in Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Democratic Gov.-elect Michael V. DiSalle flashed an occasional satisfied smile early today as hundreds of friends and well-wishers jammed his spacious home on Toledo's South Side.

Except for his youngest daughter, Diana, an 18-year-old freshman in college, Ohio's first four-year governor-to-be had all of his family around him.

Besides his wife Myrtle, those present included his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony DiSalle; two daughters, Mrs. Robert E. Watkins and Mrs. Thomas Bloomer, and a son, Michael, all of Toledo.

The hundreds who kept the big home jammed until the early hours of the morning did not see a beaming, exuberant victor. Instead, DiSalle, who has tasted defeat quite often, seemed quite pleased and humbled over his victory in his second try for Ohio's top position.

When informed shortly before midnight that The Associated Press had declared him elected on the basis of statewide reports, he said:

"That's good."

DiSalle was defeated decisively in his bid for the governorship in 1956. He also was beaten by Sen. John W. Bricker in the 1952 senatorial race.

The former Toledo mayor and price stabilizer in the Truman administration broke away from the festivities to start writing a victory statement as soon as his early margin over Republican Gov. C. William O'Neill became decisive.

His statement read:

"Although I am extremely grateful for the tremendous victory today, I am fully aware that the state of Ohio faces grave problems during the next four years.

"We will devote all of our time to produce reasonable solutions to state problems as quickly as possible.

"The campaign has been arduous but it has been eased in great measure by the kindness and assistance of thousand of Ohioans without whose personal interest the task would have been impossible.

"It is my fervent hope that our service to the state will be such as to make their efforts worthwhile.

"To Gov. O'Neill and his family I extend my best wishes for good health and future happiness.

"With victory comes the sobering realization that what brings joy to one family brings disappointment to another. I wish that in some way we could help minimize the sense of loss.

"We are blessed in that both my mother and father are able to enjoy this happy hour. My wife and children, after many heartaches, sacrifices and hard work are able to smile, and of course that adds to my happiness.

"My brothers and sisters have hared in every campaign. It is hard to realize how glorious is a democracy that makes it possible for a 14-year-old immigrant boy to see his son elected to the highest office in his city, to be appointed to a high post of responsibility in the nation, and to be elected to the chief executive office in his state.

"No effort will be too great to perpetuate and to serve the system of government and makes this demonstration of its efficacy possible."

Nelson Rockefeller's Name Tossed Around for Presidency

NEW YORK (AP) — A fresh, vivid, vote-getting personality flashed across the political skies today, like another satellite shot into orbit, and in its wake arose a question:

Will Nelson Rockefeller, the new Republican star, be a contender for the presidential nomination in 1960?

He says not.

"Believe me, boys," he told persistent reporters Tuesday night when it appeared certain he would be elected governor of New York, "I haven't given a thought to 1960. I really am not interested."

Former Rebel Arrested in Iraq

Abdel Salam Aref Seized by Police

WASHINGTON (AP) — The arrest in Iraq of a former revolutionary leader with pro-Nasser leanings may spark a new crisis in the Middle East.

Baghdad radio announced Tuesday night that Col. Abdel Salam Aref had been seized and "will be tried on a charge of plotting against the country's interests."

Aref was a close associate of Premier Abdel Kerim Kassam in the first weeks of their rule following the overthrow of the regime of King Faisal in July.

Subsequently, Aref was removed from both top military and cabinet posts and was given an appointment as Iraqi ambassador to West Germany. He was arrested, the Baghdad radio announcement said, when he returned to Iraq's capital city without permission.

U.S. officials said there was no doubt that there had been a power struggle between the two men revolving around a critical issue of policy. Aref favored very close association or union with the United Arab Republic of President Gamal Abdel Nasser, while Kassam wanted and has followed a more independent policy based on neutralism in foreign relations.

Some authorities here thought that the seizure of Aref by Kassam's government might force some vigorous reaction from Nasser against that government or Kassam personally. But they commented also that if Nasser felt his prestige was not directly involved or the force of his Arab

Experts said the action against Aref also could precipitate a political showdown inside Iraq. They reasoned that Kassam probably would not have acted unless he had been confident of his own power. But the possibility remained that his hand might have been forced by discovery of a plan for action against him on the part Democrats Headed for Widest Margin Since Days of F.D.R.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats appeared headed today for their widest margin of Senate control since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt. They won a smashing series of election victories with outlying one of their own seats.

With 4 races remaining undecided, the Democrats already had clinched 58 Senate seats (including 36 holdovers) with 33 held by the Republicans (including 26 holdovers). This was 8 more than the 50 that will be needed to win 60 or 61 seats when all the tallies are completed. This would compare with their high for the last 15 years of 57 seats in the 78th Congress, which was elected in 1942. But it was not possible for them to capture a many as the 65 posts they held in the 77th Congress elected in 1940.

Democratic candidates already had won nine seats held by Republicans — in Connecticut, Indiana, Maine, Michigan, Nevada, New Jersey and two in West Virginia. The Maine voting was in September.

The three undecided races where Democrats were leading involved seats now held by Republicans. These were in California, Minnesota and Ohio.

The Republican lead was in Wyoming, where Sen. Frank Barrett sought re-election.

For the past four years, the Democrats have clung to only a two-vote Senate margin most of the time. They had a 49-47 edge at the windup of the 85th Congress in August.

It will take 50 seats for control in the new Congress because there will be 98 senators instead of 96 when Alaska elects two Nov. 25.

Jubilant Democrats said today their new Senate margin was so big that it virtually assured them control of that body for four years, no matter which party wins the presidency in 1960.

The Democrats will have 21 Senate seats at stake in 1960, as against 11 for the Republicans. But 10 of the Democratic posts are in the South and three are in border states which normally go Democratic.

Senators John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo) both piled up tremendous votes for easy wins in their re-election contests. And in New Jersey former Rep. Harrison A. Williams (D), a protégé of Gov. Robert Meyner, captured a Republican seat handily in what had been tattered as a touch-and-go race.

Meyner, like Kennedy and Symington, figures frequently in talk about the national Democratic ticket two years hence.

Despite their big victory, the Democrats did not succeed in capturing some Republican seats they had confidently predicted they would win.

One surprise to them was the failure of Gov. Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona, former Senate majority leader, to take back his old seat from Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz), who won handily.

Another was the defeat of Democratic Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania at the hands of Rep. Hugh Scott. Still another was the failure of Frank S. Hogan to win over Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R) for the post being vacated by Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY).

In addition to the Williams' triumph in New Jersey, these were the states where Democrats captured seats now held by the GOP.

Connecticut — Former Rep. Thomas J. Dodd piled up a big margin over Sen. William A. Purtell, seeking a second term.

Indiana — Vance Hartke, mayor of Evansville, rolled to an easy win over Gov. Harold W. Handley for the post left by retiring Sen. William Jenner (R-Ind.).

Michigan — Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart unseated Republican Sen. Charles E. Potter in a battle of World War II heroes.

Nevada — Howard Cannon, Las Vegas city attorney, ousted George W. Malone (R-Nev), a two-term veteran.

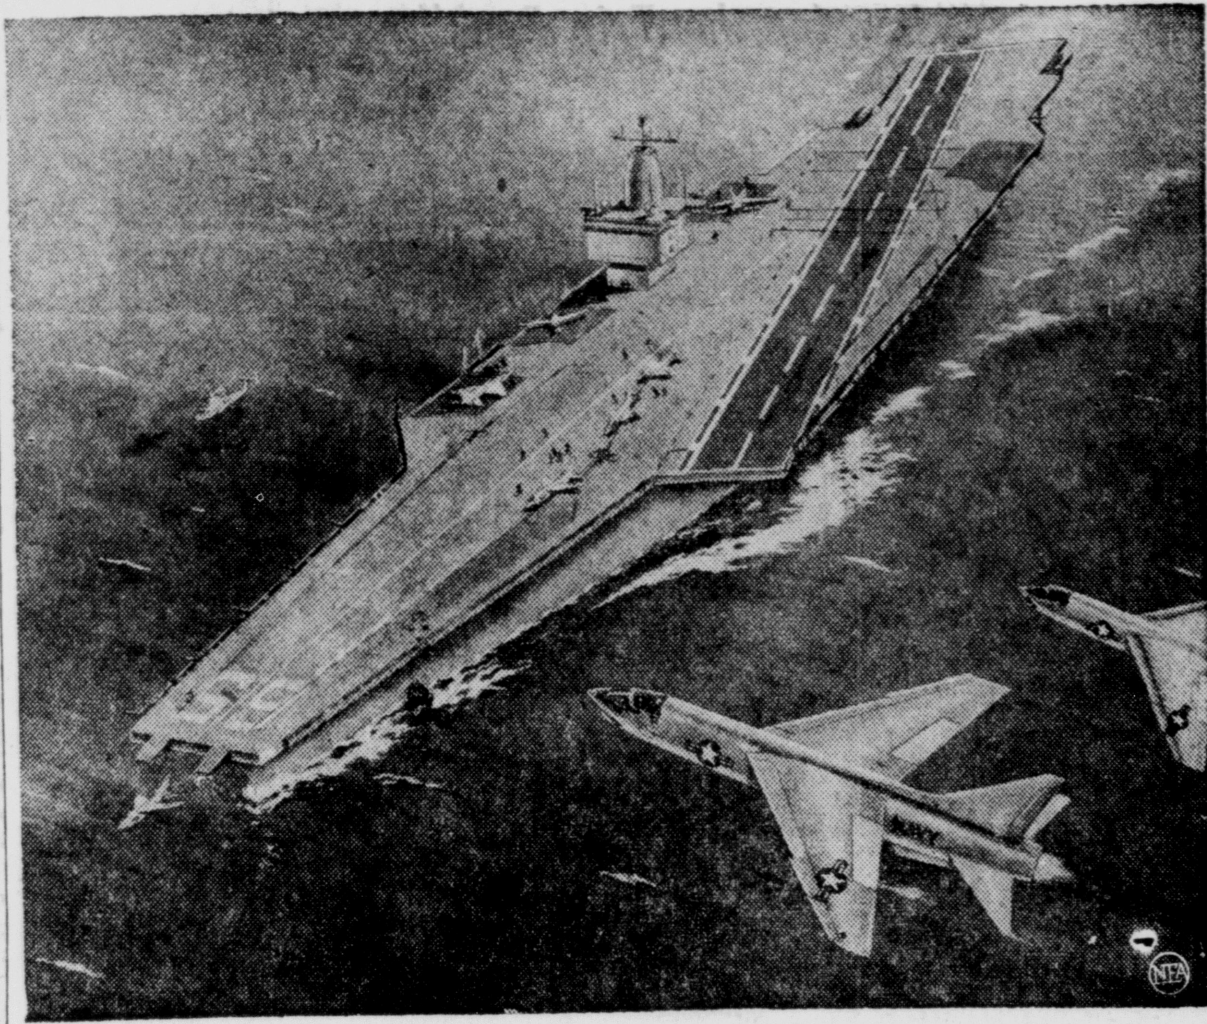

Utah — Frank E. Moss emerged victorious in a three-way race with incumbent Sen. Arthur Watkins and former Gov. J. Bracken Lee, running as an independent.

West Virginia (full six-year term) — Rep. Robert C. Byrd won easily over Sen. Chapman Revercomb.

West Virginia (two-year unexpired term) — Former Rep. Jennings Randolph got an equally big margin over Sen. John D. Hobbitt Jr., appointed to the Senate when the late Sen. Matthew Neely (D-WV) died early this year.

In addition, Gov. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine unseated Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R-Maine) in the September voting in that state.

BODY FOUND IN CREEK — ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP)—The body of a woman found in a creek in a wooded part of Saybrook Township Sunday has been identified as that of Mrs. Ted Wesner, 89, missing since May 13. Lester Adelson, deputy coroner of Cuyahoga County where the identification was made, said tests will continue to learn how the woman, mother of two young boys died.

Hanover Township Levy Is Defeated

The Hanover Township five-mill levy for construction of a building for storage, equipment and general office was defeated by voters at Tuesday's election 126 to 56.

Of the 185 total votes cast, 144 approved renewal of the United Local School District six-mill levy, and 35 voted against it.

One hundred and twenty-two voted against the proposed Columbiana County $125,000 juvenile detention home; 53 voted for the issue.

The tax levy for the Columbiana County general health district also failed to carry; 96 against and 76 for the issue.

Motorist Is Cited Following Mishap

No one was injured in a truck-car crash on Rt. 14, two miles east of Columbiana, at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

A car driven by Peter A. Drewnoski, 19, of Columbiana slowed down for traffic and was struck from the rear by a truck-trailer driven by William Gardner, 36, of Pittsburgh, Pa., according to patrolmen.

There was no damage to the truck outfit and very little damage to the car.

Gardner was arrested on a charge of following too closely, patrolmen said.

Everybody Knows How It Is

As far as the records show, the only American politician ever to admit that what he had said in the heat of a campaign was not meant to be taken seriously was the late Wendell L. Willkie, who ran a tumultuous race for the presidency in 1940 and apologized for his extremism afterward.

Before and since, candidates have played it straight; they have not apologized before or after saying things they hoped they would not be held accountable for by either friends or foes. It is a matter that would be worth looking into one of these days by a budding political scientist.

There is reason to believe that extremism in public utterances continues to be popular only because candidates have a fixation about the low intelligence of voters. They sound as if they held all voters in contempt, as a matter of fact — and many of them must feel that way.

They must have worked so long and so assiduously on the seamy side of the cloth of representative government that they forget there also are voters who are listening to them analytically — even voters who may write down and refer in the future to some of their statements.

What they should not forget is the harm they do to the people's confidence in government when they lend their names to statements in campaigns that would be barred at any other time.

There has been in this year's campaign the usual portion of slurs, slanders, innuendoes, falsehoods, misrepresentations and down-the-garden-path misdirecting. When a campaign is over, the guilt for showing contempt of the intelligence of voters is about six of one and a half dozen of the other, as between competing factions. Consequently there is no disposition to blame one side as against the other.

Everybody knows how it is. The truth is, it is not good. It reflects no credit on the people who try to sway public opinion and little credit on the citizens who are supposed to be swayed.

Surely, when most campaign material is re-examined afterward, America is overdue for a break-through into a higher order of appeal than has become commonplace in U.S. political campaigns.

It Tranquilized the Bananas, Too

Confusion is being added to confusion by people who are trying to put U.S. intervention in Lebanon in a favorable light—now that all the troops have been pulled out of that turbulent country.

Lebanon, they point out, is more stabilized than it was when the first U.S. Marines waded ashore the middle of last July. Political events have stayed on the track.

Not only in Lebanon, itself, but throughout the Middle East the impact of the intervention has had a sobering effect. There appears to have been a letup in the intensity of Nasserism, meaning the kind of pan-Arabism that is panting to get everybody into the main tent without further delay.

Jordan, which had been tagged for early collapse, is still doing business at the same old stand. Other weak-sister nationality movements have been reassured by a demonstration of U.S. interest in their sometimes chaotic affairs. It is almost as if the Union Jack were flying again from one end of the Mediterranean to the other, with the sun never setting on the British Empire, which nearly always could be relied on to fight for its friends and against its friends' enemies.

There is danger in this rationalization, because it ignores the issue of intervention in Lebanon last July, which was whether the United States had a moral right to do what it did—not only to the Lebanese but to the Middle East and, not least, to its own people.

Half a century ago when U.S. Marines were being ordered here and there to bring stability to the banana republics of Latin America, they were eminently successful. They brought tranquility to many troubled countries. They shored up the underpinning of many a wobbly government. They got results.

But they violated the American principle of nonintervention, and eventually it was more important to save the principle than to continue the practice that was making a mockery of it.

To this day, Latin Americans can be infuriated by reference to U.S. intervention—and it will be many long days into the future until the Middle East forgets and forgives U.S. intervention in Lebanon last July.

Bumper In the Aisle

For the most part, the length of an automobile has been an academic discussion, like the one Abe Lincoln disposed of about the length of a man's legs. They should be long enough to reach the ground, he thought.

An automobile should be long enough to reach from the front to the back bumper, academically speaking. But operators of parking garages in large cities do not speak academically.

In New York City, they are speaking realistically and harshly about a net loss of 15 per cent in parking space since 1955, due to extra-long cars and a prospective loss of still more space, due to still longer and in some cases wider models this year.

They have filed requests to charge penalty premium on the super-behemoths, to offset loss of space for parked cars, difficulty in maneuvering cars being parked and un-parked and liability for bending, denting and cracking some of those elegant shapes and features on new cars. Or perhaps you, the reader, are still innocent of what it costs to replace some of those curvesome selling points, like a wraparound windshield.

Thus does the academic discussion come down out of designers' northern-lit lofts and auto executives' towers to the grubby facts of everyday existence. It was not a show-down when cars began to jut out of old-fashioned short garages, but it might turn into one if parking lot and parking garage operators charged by the square foot.

THE RESULTS in New York and some other states showed clearly a public feeling that multi-millionaires occupy a popularity once held by log-cabin rail-splitters and people who worked hard for a living. In New York despite the outcome it is too early to say as to what extent the victor owes anything to bagels and blintzes.

"Now for the Trip Back"

Flags of Necessity

By RAYMOND MOLEY

In a previous column I discussed the size and importance of the American-owned and American-controlled fleet of cargo ships which are registered under the flags of friendly nations such as Liberia and Panama.

I also pointed out the bitter hostility to this kind of shipping by the British, the Norwegians, and the international maritime unions.

The need for such a constantly growing and renewed fleet, should war come to us, hardly needs to be demonstrated.

It is an axiom of the principles of wartime strength that great naval power is dependent upon a strong merchant marine engaged in peacetime in vigorous and healthy commerce. A standby fleet is as perishable as a barrel of apples.

After more than a century during which the American Merchant Marine had a proud place in the world's commerce, we turned, after the Civil War, to the development of our inland empire, and the British and Scandinavian ships supplied our foreign commerce.

Hence, in both the first and second World Wars we were caught unprepared.

IN BOTH INSTANCES there was wasteful, hysterical shipbuilding which consumed not only vast sums of money but a toll of manpower which was thus denied to the firing lines. Moreover, the great majority of emergency ships thus built were only partially suitable for commercial use after the wars were over.

At the moment, our war-built ships are reaching a dangerous obsolescence. The 14 shipping companies having subsidy contracts with the government have prudently embarked on a program to replace nearly 300 vessels over the next 10 or 15 years. This will cost — including subsidies, which are largely recovered in taxes and repayment — about four billion dollars.

In today's market a ship costing 10 million to build in the United States can be built abroad for about 4½ million dollars. The operating differential in the subsidy now runs about 120 million annually. Most of this goes into seamen's wages, for these ships must run, in competition with low-cost and lower-wage foreign ships.

But despite subsidies, these ships under the American flag are not intended to meet the special needs of our nation for transportation of great bulk loads of ores and petroleum, for example, direct from their sources of supply.

It is important to note that so far as raw materials are concerned, the United States must import more than its exports. For the first time in a century, Britain is exporting more than it imports.

To attempt to provide an American flag fleet adequate to meet our raw materials needs through subsidy of high construction and operating costs would require an outlay of federal funds which Congress would never appropriate. For it would be an astronomical sum.

NATIONAL SECURITY and, indeed, survival therefore require some other means of providing American-owned cargo ships.

This imperative need is met by American-owned and American-controlled ships registered under flags of nations which are not only friendly but relatively dependent upon us economically. Liberia and Panama fit that description.

In fact, the United States played a major role in the creation of both nations.

These ships would be available to the United States in case of war; they can operate in international commerce at a cost which permits competition with our maritime rivals, and their operation permits the accumulation of funds for necessary new construction.

In addition to providing relief from high labor costs, there are other fiscal factors which make these registries attractive.

Panama officials have pointed out that they can offer a currency which is at a point of stability with the dollar; they do not create obstacles designed to corner profits through exchange restrictions and there are no unreasonable registration charges. Liberian laws permit the same kind of advantage.

Vote Reform Needed

By DAVID LAWRENCE

America's Voting System Is Obsolete

This is the time when there is lots of criticism of those citizens who don't vote. But much of the criticism is unjustified. For the real reasons why many people don't vote are usually overlooked by the critics.

The estimates are that when the final totals are tabulated in a few days it will be about 48 million people who voted in the congressional and state elections this week. This is about 48 per cent of the total number of persons of voting age.

Then when the victorious party counts its total it may be found—according to Gallup surveys—that perhaps 57 per cent of the 48 million or about 27,360,000 voters have been responsible for the decision of the electorate. In percentages this means that about 27.3 per cent of the people have selected for the other 72.7 per cent the kind of Congress which is to govern everybody.

Those who don't like public opinion polls sometimes argue that because everybody doesn't participate, the polls don't mean anything.

But, even if there were 100 per cent participation, it is most likely that the remaining voters would divide almost exactly as did those who were in the original 48 per cent who did vote.

In other words the 48 million figure presents a fair sample of how the 100 million vote would also divide.

What isn't generally realized is that many people refrain from voting because it is inconvenient. America's voting system is obsolete.

The idea of compelling the vote in some states to go to the polls twice — once to register and once to vote — is cumbersome.

The idea also of using one day for the final election to fulfill so important a duty is unrealistic.

IT WOULD BE a very simple matter for the states to appropriate enough money for attendance and other facilities to carry on the voting process through three and even five days, thus giving time for both registration and voting to be accomplished simultaneously.

Voting could be arranged systematically so that persons with last names beginning with certain letters of the alphabet would go to the polls the first day and others on designated days.

A uniform system in each state could be established and publicized in advance so that voters could come to the polling booths at convenient times.

The main trouble today is that voting booths are crowded at the early morning hours and in the late afternoon and evening. By extending the number of voting days the polls would not be so crowded. Many voters go to the polls, wait in line a half hour or hear that it takes even longer for the line to be cleared and then turn away impatiently either because a work schedule is being interfered with, or because they do not like to stand waiting for such a long interval especially in bad weather.

In some states Election Day is a legal holiday and all business establishments are closed.

While business would not like to see five full days of holiday this wouldn't be necessary. In fact, it wouldn't require any single day for a full closing of business but merely time off for those individuals the first letter of whose surname came up for attendance on a given day.

IT IS ESTIMATED that this year out of the 100 million persons of voting age, approximately 76 million have registered.

Some states have what is called a "permanent registration" through regular payment of poll taxes. Since only 48 million people are estimated to be the actual voters this week, it means that 28 million who were registered stayed away from the polls. The answer is not to be found, therefore, in the registration problem alone.

Why don't people who registered go to the polls to vote on election day? One reason is temporary illness. Another is inconvenience, such as lack of transportation.

Many mothers who are eligible to vote can't get baby sitters. Still other voters are permanently bedridden.

Other citizens are travelling on necessary errands.

In some states arrangements have been made for absentee ballots to be cast by persons who are physically unable to be at the polls. Not enough states have passed laws on this phase of non-voting.

Also, it is estimated that 33 million people change their place of residence every year. Those of voting age in this group should not be disenfranchised.

But there is another reason for the absence from the voting places of many millions of voters.

THEY JUST plainly aren't interested — they dislike both parties or both candidates or else they take it for granted that other people in sufficient numbers will express the same view they hold as to the merits of the parties or the nominees.

There are some people who stay home as a protest. This is their right. They will not choose between what they consider two evils. They will never vote for the opposition party and they happen at the moment to be opposed to both the candidate and their own party on current issues.

All in all 48 million is a fair sample of how 100 million would vote but it is the obligation of the states at least to provide better facilities and more convenient arrangements both as to time and place of voting for those who really want to vote.

Election Day 1958

By TRUMAN TWILL

It was hard to believe civilization was hanging in the balance when I drove home from Bridgeport Precinct after exercising my franchise in 1958.

It hadn't been easy to believe on the way up there, either. My first flat tire in years had delayed takeoff 15 minutes, and the sun had burned through the November mist when I arrived.

The leaves clinging to the oaks were bronze, russet and maroon — a special shade of maroon like the sweater handed out to members of the high school football squad in my generation.

The November landscape reminded me of the way it looked when a beneficiary of co-education set forth for a November stroll with a companionable co-ed whose flashing smile and tinkling laughter has changed all melancholy days since then into lengthening years of happiness.

As nearly as I can recall, there has been only one change in the staff at Bridgeport Precinct in the nine Novembers we have been going up there to save democracy and the American way of life. The first time, one of the senior citizens asked if we lived at the old Lowry place with the big poplar tree next to the spring in the flat behind the house. We did. That identified us — that tree, which has been there since time began, judged by its size, and the spring, which may very well have been known to early settlers.

They now have new voting booths at Bridgeport Precinct — steel, with red, white and blue curtains — very posh. They needed them, just as they needed the concrete-block building they put up five years ago after the abandoned school house caved in. But they rarely get any new voters. Everybody knows who shows up and who's missing.

The farmers are getting the corn in hand on their own terms this year, thanks to good weather. They were going to be busy on Election Day, for a change. It usually rains, though it doesn't make any difference any more whether it rains or not, as far as voting is concerned. Everybody can get to the polls now. At Bridgeport Precinct, they even come on tractors.

On the way to town, there was a beautiful specimen of Belgian horse breeding in the barnyard of the farm that still raises them for sale to the Amish, I suppose, because almost all farmers now use tractor.

A little further on, a window box of pink geraniums had been sheltered from frost so successfully the blooms were of midsummer quality.

Clusters of boys and girls stood by the roadside waiting for the big yellow buses that would be along presently. Hillsides were decorated with the harlequin designs of black-and-white cattle.

A flock of sheep had settled down to cud-chewing under a far-spreading beech. In a bend of the creek, where a basin has been washed out of the bank by a few hundred years of swirling current, half a dozen white geese were ducking and splashing.

There was a procession of crows, flapping across the horizon. Houses that must have been new not long after this nation had turned over Abraham Lincoln to the ages looked sturdy enough in the strong light of a promising new day to last another century.

It was hard to believe civilization was hanging in the balance this Election Day in 1958—that it would matter a whit one way or the other where a voter had exuded his prejudices for and against the men and the issues who come and go and come and go and somehow seem more the same the more they come and the more they go.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

With the political wars over, the racket busters return from their furloughs. Another season, another challenge from the McClellan committee counsel, Robert Kennedy, to the heavily counseled Jim Hoffa — clean up if you can. Another season, another powerful labor hood — a million dollar a year type fellow who the federal and local gendarmerie say has terrorized sections of Chicago for years.

This season Kennedy will be pitching at a 4-year-old wearer of the silks for the colleagues of the long departed Al Capone. I write of Joseph (Joey) Paul Glimco, who the Senate committee probes believe controls some 10 to 15 Chicago Teamster locals.

Thus JP would be part of the hosting brethren when Hoffa calls his Chicago convention to order some time next year. Glimco is a modest man when it comes to holding office. He's an official of the Teamsters' Taxi Local 777.

He lives modestly, too, in two suburban homes with three cars. But even to a nation accustomed to the exposure by Sen. John McClellan and Bob Kennedy of raw arrogance, the Glimco story will be a profile in power which will startle the land.

BASICALLY Joey Glimco is a Teamster business agent. Yet by actual count he collects close to a million dollars a year from terrorized folk trying to earn a quiet living in Chicago's transport fields, meat and poultry markets, laundries and almost any other business you can pull out of a telephone directory.

This defiant one has gone literally from rag paper to riches. His arrest record of 2 bookings ranging from murder to disorderly conduct hasn't handicapped him at all.

Just so there would be no stain on the story at all, his police sheet simply got up and walked right out of the files of the Chicago Police Identification Bureau. Not to be outdone, documents reporting Glimco's indictments for murder and assault with intent to murder also took themselves a stroll out of the vault of the Criminal Court of Cook County (Chicago).

If these records didn't suddenly develop legs in this ear of atomic radio-active mutations, then somebody removed the papers. And you wouldn't believe that could happen in this day and thermonuclear age.

HOW DID THIS former newsboy make good? Imagination, my friend, imagination. He once was the chicken feather king of Chicago.

Controlling the poultry field gives you an in — and you can do with feathers what you like. Glimco sold them to processors. It brought in a nice profit.

He went into the laundry business. There's money in washing the overalls of working people at filling stations, for example, which depend on other Teamster locals for delivery of fuel.

Glimco thought it would be a nice gesture if the locals solicited business for him. They did.

And I hope it doesn't come to you as an extraneous thought here that the city of Chicago once spent over $250,000 to protect other unionists, including many an honest Teamster official, who by strange whimsy were not enthusiastic in their devotion to Glimco's products.

In counselor Kennedy's book, Joey Glimco is more than just another probe.

To the Senate racket-busting committee counsel Joey Glimco is the symbol of the syndicate control. For back there when the Korean war was ending, the old Capone crowd needed someone to look after its labor enterprises.

THE MEN OF POWER. Paul (the Waiter) Ricca and Tony Accardo, saw much promise in Joey Glimco. They put him in charge. He made good that promise — and faithfully ran the empire from the business agent's chair in Local 777. When Bob Kennedy swears Joey Glimco in at a Senate hearing scheduled for early in January, he will have his friends and super protectors at his side. The committee plans to call Ricca and Accardo.

FAMILY TREE SURGEON—Mrs. Annie B. Richardson, author of the only major genealogical study of the Eisenhower family, sits with her books of facts and statistics in her Greenwood, Ind., home. Compiling a 1,000-page book called the "Eisenhower Lineage," Mrs. Richardson found that the President is a sixth-generation descendant of Hans Nicholas Iron Cutter (or Eisenhauer), a German who came to America in 1741.

In their crowd they are considered "stand-up guys." They will say nothing, for they are great devotees of the Bill of Rights. Their specialty is the Fifth Amendment.

And when the Teamsters Union gathers in Chicago either next March or September, Joey Glimco will be among the delegates, duly elected, of course, just as he was right there up front in the Miami Beach convention casting his ballot for "The Man."

The more things change, the more they are the same.

Reforestation Plan

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—What Hollywood needs, says producer Jerry Wald, is a reforestation plan to grow new stars.

The independent producers are chopping down the trees," he remarked, "but they aren't doing any planting."

"They are gypsies. They grab a big buck and move on."

Wald, now under a five-year, 18-picture deal with 20th Century-Fox, feels that a studio's star reforestation project is beginning to pay off.

"In another two years it should be self-sufficient. We'll have a good stock of young, well-groomed actors. We have about 50 players under contract—and it takes guts in the industry today to have a regular payroll."

It costs considerably more to grow movie stars than it does to raise Christmas trees.

"These seedlings need all kinds of help—from special training to wardrobes," said Wald. "It costs a minimum of $100,000 for each personality you sign, whether eventually you keep him or let him go."

Although not exactly an enemy of the star system, the producer feels the presence of stars is no sure guarantee of success for a picture. To him the most important thing is still the story.

"A star without a good story is like a drowning man without a life preserver," he observed. "The most important figures in Hollywood aren't the 12 biggest stars. I'd say the 12 best screenwriters are more important."

Film star planning is a hazardous form of lumbering.

"The mortality rate is high," acknowledged Wald. "Only about one in 25 pans out."

"But there is no real shortage of talent. There is a shortage of talent to recognize a talent."

"It's like mining rough ore. Every studio has made its mistakes. No one is infallible."

"Warner" dropped Clark Gable. Fox dropped Grace Kelly. MGM dropped Fred Astaire.

"Raoul Walsh once brought a guy named Rock Hudson around to see me. His name amused me, but I couldn't use him. The same with James Dean. He stood about 5 feet 4. I must confess I couldn't figure what to do with him."

"The whole thing is pretty much like playing a slot machine. Before you can win you have to put in the coin."

Governor-Elect Is Veteran Campaigner

Defeats Have Made DiSalle Wiser

By ART PARKS
Associated Press Writer

Ohio's governor-elect, Michael V. DiSalle, is a humble man. His humility is such a natural part of him that he seems unaware of it. Humility is freedom from pride or arrogance. Mike DiSalle, who has experienced both triumph and defeat in his 22 years in public life, fits that definition well.

The chunky, graying governor-elect philosophized privately as this year's campaign drew near its close:

"Every public official should get soundly walloped at least once. It does something for him."

That brief remark gives Ohioans a peephole through which they can get a broad insight into how the rise and fall of fortune's tide as molded the character of their first four-year-term governor-to-be.

Of defeats he has had aplenty; he finally made the grade with Ohio voters on his fourth bid for statewide office—two for U.S. senator and two for governor.

Defeat has given the 50-year-old veteran of politics from city to national level a knowledge that high public office is an elusive thing—mighty hard to come by. And defeat has solidly confirmed for him the ego-deflating fact: The office is the important thing, not the man who holds it. He told a campaign audience just a few days ago:

"If I didn't have a deep respect for the office of governor, I wouldn't be running for it."

The governor-elect is a family man and a devoted one. That could be a result—or an effect—of his inner sense of humility.

Mike and Myrtle DiSalle have reached that pleasant stage in life where their four lovely daughters and one handsome son are adults. The youngest, Diana, is 18 and a college freshman.

The DiSalle daughters—three of them redheads—are A, B, C, and D.

Antoinette (Toni), is now Mrs. Robert E. Watkins. She has a son, Robert Mark, five months, who is a redhead like his mother.

Barbara, a teacher, is an employee of Sen. Paul Douglas (D Ill.).

Constance is Mrs. Thomas Bloomer. She has a daughter, Deborah Jo, five months. Constance has red hair, but not her daughter.

Diana is a freshman at St. Marys, South Bend, Ind. She's the third redhead of the family.

Son Michael E. DiSalle is married to the former Jean King. They have a 2-year-old daughter, Faye Ann.

They — the whole effervescent clan—probably will carry into the governor's mansion a family custom. That is a late-Sunday morning brunch. Probably, after inauguration day, the ingathering of the clan won't occur every Sunday, because Toledo isn't exactly next door to Columbus, but it will be as often as circumstances permit.

Why? Because the DiSalle youngsters seem to think their parents are still a lot of fun.

Myrtle and Mike were married before he finished law school at Georgetown University in the District of Columbia. He completed his education in 1931.

The governor-elect's parents came to the United States from Italy, but citizens of Italian ancestry cannot—accurately—claim him as one of their own. Actually, DiSalle is of French descent. His ancestors fled from France to Italy during the French Revolution.

DiSalle was born in New York City, but his family moved to Toledo 47 years ago. He grew up in the northern Ohio city and attended public and parochial schools.

Five years after the future governor was admitted to the bar, he was elected to the Ohio House of Representatives, but two years later he was defeated in a bid for a seat in the Ohio Senate.

For 10 years, he was busy with his law practice and civic work in Toledo. Then, the Toledo City Council elected him mayor (the city has a manager form of government.)

DiSalle was not content to be a ceremonial functionary. Instead, he took the lead to develop the nationally recognized Toledo plan in his strife-torn city. It was a citizens-labor-management committee that resulted in greater industrial harmony. It was probably one of his greatest successes, to date.

DiSalle started a second term as Toledo mayor, but on Dec. 12, 1950, during the conflict in Korea, he was called by President Truman to direct the Federal Office of Price Stabilization. Now, years later, he can still joke grimly with his associates of that 15-month period, about the daily agonies they faced.

One of the associates was the now U. S. Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho). At a recent Ohio campaign appearance by Sen. Church, they agreed: "We had both the pros and cons so mad at us we figured we must be doing a pretty good job."

It can never be said of Mike DiSalle that he picks on a cripple. Before he took on the rugged federal job in the Truman administration, he sought the opportunity to run against "Mr. Republican"—U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft—but DiSalle lost in the primary. Two years later, he was the nominee to oppose U.S. Sen. John W. Bricker, but went down in the first Eisenhower landslide.

Two years ago, he took on the golden boy of Ohio Republican politics—C. William O'Neill—and was defeated in his race for governor by a solid 427,000 votes in another, and even greater, Eisenhower landslide.

DiSalle was about to throw in the political towel. But he quickly sensed all was not peaches and cream with the newly installed O'Neill administration.

Feeling that Ohio voters were convinced they had made a mistake in preferring O'Neill in 1956, DiSalle decided to offer himself once more for election to high office.

The decision paid off. Finally, after 22 years, he hit the big time Tuesday.

Mike DiSalle is a humble, soft-spoken man, but he has a mind like a razor and a wit as sharp as an icepick.

His friends have always said: "Mike's too nice a guy to be much of a campaigner but give him a chance to be governor once and everyone will be surprised how he makes things go."

It was a long time coming, perhaps, but the voters have given him the chance.

Mike DiSalle's future is up to Mike DiSalle.

And, being a graduate of the college of hard knocks, he knows it.

Nelson Rockefeller Easy Winner In New York Election

Harriman Loses By Big Margin

Half Million Votes Separates Candidates

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller's election as governor by more than half a million votes skyrocketed him today as a possibility for the 1960 GOP presidential nomination.

The multimillionaire's overwhelming triumph over wealthy Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman stood out particularly because of its contrast with Republican defeats in other states.

It also appeared to knock out whatever chance Harriman may have had for the Democratic presidential nomination two years hence. Harriman had sought the nod in 1952 and 1956.

The campaign spearheaded by Rockefeller also led to election of Republican Rep. Kenneth B. Keating of Rochester as U.S. senator. Regarded as Underdog

Keating, regarded as an underdog throughout the campaign, defeated Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan for the office Republican Sen. Irving M. Ives is vacating for reasons of health.

Returns from 11,464 of 11,525 election districts gave: Rockefeller 3,102,064; Harriman 2,542,435.

Returns from 11,364 districts gave: Keating 2,804,102; Hogan 2,670,363.

Rockefeller has insisted — and repeated today — that he is not interested in 1960 possibilities and that he has "no other intention" than to serve his four-year term as governor.

But his supporters have been talking him up as a possibility since it first became apparent that he might win the state election.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, a chief contender for the GOP presidential nomination, telephoned Rockefeller to congratulate him on his victory.

Brightest Spot on Scene Rockefeller quoted Nixon as saying he was delighted and that it was "the brightest spot on the national scene for the Republican party."

Nixon also put in a congratulatory phone call to Keating.

The governor-elect said he intended to leave in a few days for a vacation on his farm in Venezuela "to get some rest and be in shape, ready to go after the job."

Rockefeller, 50, genial, liberal-minded member of the famed oil fortune family, scored heavily in traditionally Republican upstate New York and cut sharply into the normal Democratic majority in New York City.

L. Judson Morhouse, GOP state chairman and Rockefeller's campaign manager, termed the election of Rockefeller and Keating as "a triumph for responsible good government and a repudiation of Tammany boss rule of New York state."

Morhouse said the Republican victories in New York "in the face of the national trend" represented a personal victory for Rockefeller and a vote of confidence in progressive Republican philosophy.

Democrats

Senate seats in Connecticut, Indiana, Maine in September, Michigan, Nevada, New Jersey, Ohio, Utah, California, Minnesota and two in West Virginia.

There were topsy-turvy results all over the nation.

Sectionally, the Republicans showed more strength in the East than in any other area. With New York leading the way, the GOP preserved Senate seats in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Vermont. They lost seats in Connecticut, New Jersey and two in West Virginia.

Lost in Maryland Republicans overturned Democratic governors in New York and Rhode Island. They lost the governor's office in Maryland.

The Democratic tide rose highest in the Midwest farm belt. In that area only Nebraska and North Dakota remained as islands of Republicanism.

Farther west, Republicans held out in Arizona, Idaho, Oregon and Wyoming against a Democratic slide that rumbled to the Pacific Coast.

The expected happened in California. There, Sen. William F. Knowland slid down to disastrous defeat and the probable end of a 25-year political career.

Knowland, who retired as the Senate's Republican leader and shoved Gov. Goodwin J. Knight out of the race for re-election, lost the governorship to Democratic Atty. Gen. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown. Knight, who fought with Knowland to the last, lost to Democratic Rep. Clair Engle in the senatorial race.

The results gave no solace to

NELSON ROCKEFELLER
New York Governor-elect

Vice President Nixon. His expected bid for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination now would have to be pitched from a Democratic state against a new Yankee slinger, Rockefeller. And Rockefeller would have a deep political bench behind him in New York.

The amazing victory of Goldwater in Arizona emphasized the impact of personalities and local issues on the election results. Goldwater ranged as far right politically as present-day boundaries allow.

The Democratic upsurge, biggest since 1932, left some strange results in its wake. Pennsylvania offered a study in contrasts.

There Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh, a Democratic wheelhorse who likes Adlai E. Stevenson for the party's 1960 presidential nomination, swept to victory in the governor's race.

all was designed to provide $370,000 over a five-year period for expansion and repairs to the present system. If passed, the additional tax would have been 20 cents for each $100 property valuation from 1958 through 1962.

The school levy funds are earmarked for: (A) salaries for additional teachers for the increased school enrollment; (B) maintenance expenses in the new senior high school; and (C) increase in teachers salary schedule.

City and township voters also balloted against the county levies. The $125,000 juvenile detention home bond issue was rejected by Salem city and township voters 3,645 to 2,792.

Township voters disapproved the two-cent health department ed "no" on the right-to-work bill, levy 539 to 461.

A total of 3,626 city residents voted compared with 2,830 who favored the bill.

union movement. They have recognized the need for a strong trade union movement as the only instrument through which workers can, by their democratic decisions and actions, secure their fair share of the fruits of our developing economy.

Workers Are Grateful

"The organized workers of Ohio are grateful to their fellow citizens for their understanding and support," continued his statement. "Particularly we are indebted to the many splendid organizations and courageous individuals who stood by and supported organized labor in its greatest hour of need."

"Without this splendid support and encouragement to labor the people of Ohio could not have realized this tremendous victory. Organized labor will not disappoint these organizations and individuals, nor will we disappoint all the people of Ohio. Organized labor will continue its past efforts to constantly improve in the image of democracy, freedom and justice for all," Ross said.

Elton Kile, chairman of the Right to Work Campaign Committee, said:

"The voters have spoken. It cannot be denied that this was one of the most thoroughly and openly discussed issues in the history of Ohio politics."

Gathered Petitions

Ohioans for Right to Work, Inc., gathered the initiative petitions which put the issue on the ballot. Labor organizations charged that the sponsors were linked with the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and the National Assn. of Manufacturers.

In the industrial centers, the strongholds of organized labor, there were whopping figures against right to work. That was expected.

But even in some of the less populous areas, in farm country and in the hill country of southern Ohio, there were many counties that turned down the proposal or gave it only slim margins in favor.

Voters of Two Townships Reject Sale of Whisky

Voters in Elkrun and Salem townships Tuesday rejected proposals to legalize sale of whisky by the glass in areas where taverns now are licensed to sell only beer and wine.

Elkrun Township rejected the proposition with 256 negative votes and 141 in favor. Salem Township turned down the same type of proposal, with 426 voting "no" and 259 casting "yes" ballots. A bare majority was enough to decide the issue in each case.

The vote in Salem Township affected only the rural area outside of Leetonia and Washingtonville villages. The petition requesting the vote was filed by Wilfred Tunnat, operator of a tavern outside Washingtonville that is licensed to sell beer and wine.

Elkrun Township also has a lone tavern licensed to sell only beer and wine. The petition requesting the vote was filed by Elmer and Gladys Conkle of Rogers, RD 1.

Contest Scheduled In E. Goshen Church

A Prince of Peace contest will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 at the East Goshen Friends Church.

Those taking part are Barbara Herron, Diane Gerber, Bonnie Lou Green, Jeff Roberts, and Bruce Bayless.

Beaver School Issue-Levy Voted Down

A combined bond issue-levy for Beaver Local School district was turned down by voters in Tuesday's election, but a current two-mill operating levy was renewed, according to unofficial returns.

The bond issue-levy, designed to supplement state funds for construction of additional school facilities, lost as follows:

For 1,010
Against 1,180

The figures are complete on the basis of returns from 15 polling places.

The two-mill operating levy for five years, which needed only a majority approval for renewal passed on the basis of returns from all but the Glenmore and Yellow Creek polling places. The vote was:

For 1,193
Against 977

The number voting at the two non-reporting precincts was not considered sufficient to affect the outcome, officials said. Only one area failed to support the renewal of the operating levy. At Oak Grove, it was turned down 52 to 28.

Officials indicated there may be a move to submit the combined bond issue-levy in a special election. The issue included a half-mill levy to repay part of the state grant of $326,000 tentatively assigned to the district while a bond issue for $209,000 was designed to bring the district's bonded indebtedness up to nine per cent needed to qualify for state aid.

Utilities Director Aubrey Hayes reported that he does not anticipate carrying any utility bills over from 1958 to 1959.

Second Ward Councilman Don Cannon requested that the traffic and safety committee study the proposed removal of four parking meters on the west side of N. Lincoln between E. State St. and Sugartree Alley.

The street department is still patching some streets and removing leaves from the gutters. Service Director Harry Vincent reported.

Rotary Club Views Pictures Of Michaud's European Trip

COLUMBIANA — Some of the more than 1200 color slides taken on a recent European trip were screened by Maurice Michaud of Columbiana at the Rotary Club meeting Monday evening at Valley Golf Club. Ohio Republicans Lose 3 Seats In House of Representatives

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Democrats have taken three House seats from the Republicans. That makes the Buckeye delegation 14 Republicans and 9 Democrats.

Here is where the changes took place:

In the 10th District, southeast Ohio, where Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironton retired after serving in Congress since 1925. The winner was Walter H. Moeller, a Lutheran minister who lives in Lancaster. He defeated Homer E. Abele of McArthur.

In the 17th District, north central Ohio, where the late J. Harry McGregor of Coshocton had served 10 terms. After his death on Oct. 7 his place on the ballot was taken by Lawrence Burns, GOP chairman of Coshocton County, but the winner was Robert W. Levering, a Fredericktown Democrat.

In the 11th District, in northeast Ohio, where Robert E. Cook of Kent won a close victory over the Republican incumbent, David Dennison of Warren.

There had been predictions that the Democrats stood a good chance in the 10th and 17th Districts, but few political observers had foreseen the upset in the 11th.

Moeller is 48, Hoosier born, and is on leave of absence from the ministry of the Lutheran Church, which he had served for 22 years. He has taught in Griffin and De fiance colleges.

His victory was won in his home county of Fairfield, which he carried 15,100 to 7,720. He also led in Athens, Hocking and Lawrence counties. Abele led in Gallia, Jackson, Meigs and Vinton. But in his home county of Vinton his margin was only 2,213 to 2,064.

Levering won a Congress seat on his fifth try. He had run unsuccessfully in 1948, 1950, 1954 and 1956. A lawyer and cattle breeder, he is the author of an eye witness account of the Bataan death march and spent 3½ years in Japanese prison camps. He is 54.

He carried his home county of Knox, along with Licking, but it was in Richland County, Mansfield, that he clinched victory, piling up a margin of more than 4,000 ballots. Burns carried Ashland, Delaware and Holmes, as well as his home county of Coshocton, where his edge was only 6,467 to 5,749.

Ford Trails Donahue For Appeals Court

Atty. John L. Donahue of Youngstown apparently was elected as a new member of the Seventh District Court of Appeals, winning by a margin of 4,303 votes over Probate Judge Robert B. Ford of Geauga county, according to complete but unofficial returns from Tuesday's general election in the 13-county district.

Donahue will replace Judge John C. Nichols of St. Clairsville, who was defeated in the primaries in May in a bid for a fifth term. The count in the Donahue-Ford race showed:

Donahue 159,624

Ford 155,321

The Democratic landslide apparently contributed to the Donahue victory, as he was the party's nominee in the primaries. Judge Ford was named on the GOP slate in May. Both ran yesterday on a non-partisan judicial ballot.

Judge Ford carried Columbiana county, 15,417 to 13,431. His opponent rolled up big margins in Democratic strongholds, including a 16,126 to 9,561 victory in Belmont County.

Here is the vote by counties: Ashtabula — Donahue, 12,199 and Ford, 14,700; Belmont — Donahue, 16,126 and Ford, 9,561; Carroll — Donahue 2,964 and Ford 2,321; Columbiana — Donahue, 14,421 and Ford 15,417; Geauga — Donahue, 4,351 and Ford, 8,649; Harrison — Donahue 3,091 and Ford, 2,687; Jefferson — Donahue, 16,941 and Ford, 12,715; Lake — Donahue, 17,046 and Ford 13,010; Mahoning — Donahue 36,972 and Ford, 41,127; Monroe — Donahue, 2,012; and Ford, 1,145; Noble — Donahue 1,967 and Ford 1,456; Portage — Donahue 12,418 and Ford, 11,983; and Trumbull—Donahue, 19,005 and Ford, 20,550.

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — A Baltimore & Ohio westbound train struck the automobile of Lloyd Alfred, 77, of Tiffin, Tuesday and he was killed. One car of the train was derailed.

Routine Issues Acted Upon by Lisbon Board

LISBON — The school board on Tuesday night authorized the attendance of principals George Nace Jr., David Barrow and Cornell Monda at the second annual conference for junior and senior high school principals at Kent State University Tuesday.

The board also authorized the automatic pay raise to Jack Mills, basketball coach and economics, civics and boys physical education instructor. He has completed the extra schooling which places him in a higher bracket in the salary scale.

Supt. Loren Early reported on the revision of the high school curriculum. He said he expects it to be ready for the board's approval in December or the first part of January.

He said it has been proposed that Lisbon and Leetonia work together to acquire a speech and hearing therapist for the next school term. The salary will be paid by the State Board of Education if the two schools pool their pupils.

He reported also that a workshop is now in the planning stage for Lisbon, Leetonia, Columbiana and East Palestine schools. The date has been set tentatively for Feb. 20 at Columbiana School. It is in effect in Lisbon schools, whereby students can get a half pint of milk for five cents, with the state paying three cents of the total eight-cent cost.

The board authorized the retreading of four tires for a school bus at a cost of $128 and the purchasing of two school bus new tires at a cost of $182.70.

The board also authorized the attendance of Supt. Early to the Ohio Association of School Administrators' meeting Dec. 5, in Cleveland.

A lengthy discussion was held on the six new school rooms which will be added to Lincoln School as the result of Tuesday's election. Special meetings will be called and contracts let as soon as possible, so that the rooms will be ready by Sept. 1, 1939.

The next regular meeting will be Tuesday, Dec. 9, at 7:30 p.m.

Democratic Gains Parallel 1936 Victories

Election posters today flipped back through the pages of history for 22 years to find a parallel to the Democratic sweep at the polls Tuesday that unseated four Republican Courthouse officials.

A Democratic landslide in 1936, led by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's overwhelming third term victory, gave nine county offices to his party and ousted five incumbent Republicans.

The county's total vote in the two elections also showed a parallel. The turnout hit 99,826 yesterday, probably a new high for an off-year election. In the 1936 election, the total vote was 40,567.

In the election 22 years ago, the Democrats elected two commissioners, a prosecuting attorney, a court clerk, a sheriff, a recorder, a treasurer, an engineer and a coroner. Except for the two commissioners, the recorder and the coroner, it was a case of Republican incumbents being replaced by Democrats.

The 1936 election was the first time in history Columbiana County turned over the Courthouse to the Democratic party and showed majorities for the same party's state and national candidates.

East Liverpool Tax Repealed by Voters

EAST LIVERPOOL—The sweeping program of municipal improvements launched by Mayor Fred Lawrence Jan. 1 was halted dead in its tracks Tuesday when East Liverpool voters overwhelmingly voted down a city income tax that went into effect May 1 and put local government on a sound fiscal basis for the first time in many years.

The vote against the tax of eight-tenths of one per cent was 5,375 for repeal and 3,475 against the repeal.

All four wards voted against retention of the tax, which was designated to produce approximately $400,000 annually.

The tax was repealed via initiative ordinances placed on the ballot by the Trades and Labor Council. Two companion measures also were approved overwhelmingly—one to require refund of all money collected under the tax and the other forbidding Council from enacting such a tax again without a vote of the people.

Nine new policemen and five new firemen face layoffs along with about a dozen adult school crossing guards, three street department workers, a new dog warden and possibly one of the two health board sanitary inspectors.

About 150 city employees face loss of a general 10 per cent wage increase that they were granted as result of the new revenue from the income tax.

Where to go for information about a second income

If you hope to have—as millions have—a second income from stocks or bonds, then you'll be interested in where to find help. You don't have to be rolling in money. An estimated two out of three shareowners have incomes under $7500 a year. Many are acquiring stock on the New York Stock Exchange for as little as $40 every three months through the convenient Monthly Investment Plan.

Select a Member Firm

A Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange is where you go for help. It's remarkable how many services the Member Firm performs.

A Registered Representative or a Partner there will share his knowledge and experience with you without charge. Member Firms spend millions of dollars, all told, in research to get information for their customers.

This is most important, for not every company makes a profit or pays a dividend or interest. Always invest on facts—never just on tips or rumors. Remember that stock and bond prices go down as well as up. And use money left over after living expenses are paid and emergencies provided for.

The nation's market place

Once you've decided to buy stock on the New York Stock Exchange, the rest can be extraordinarily swift and easy. The Member Firm promptly notifies its representative on the trading floor of the Exchange of your decision. The Exchange is an auction market place where orders to buy and sell come together. There a seller is found, and the transaction is often carried out in a few minutes. Your representative on the trading floor will buy for you there at the lowest price he can. When he sells he will get the highest price he can.

One of the advantages of owning stock on the New York Stock Exchange is that whenever you want to convert your stock into cash you can usually find a buyer right away.

A wide range of securities

Not many people realize the exceptional financial stability of the Member Firms of the New York Stock Exchange. In every year since 1920 Members' solvency record has actually been better than that of the nation's banks. Their customers include small investors as well as large. And the wide range of securities with which they are familiar—from bonds to preferred and common stocks—enables them to help you plan investments to fit many different needs. From time to time, be sure to ask them to review your holdings with you.

More than 300 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange have paid a cash dividend every year from 25 to 109 years. We've put their records in a valuable booklet, "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS." Ask a nearby Member Firm for a free copy. Or send the coupon. We'll be glad to mail you one.

Scaffolding encloses the Capitol's east front.

A NEW FRONT

SOME critics believe that the face lifting on the historic east front of the United States Capitol is a case of "Capitol punishment." Others claim the controversial remodeling is long overdue for two reasons—to support the giant east iron dome that dates from 1865, and to provide for much-needed office space. Meanwhile, workmen are taking precautions to make sure nobody can tell that the east front's face is being lifted. Experts are measuring the sandstone facade with delicate instruments for its reproduction in marble. The front is being extended 32½ feet at a cost of more than ten million dollars. It will provide space for 62 new offices, two restaurants and nine storage rooms.

Lee MacPhail Is Named General Manager of Orioles

Richard Stays As Club's Pilot

Son of Former Yank Owner 41-Years-Old

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lee MacPhail will take over the general manager's job of the Baltimore Orioles from Paul Richards, who will devote his full attention to managing the team on the field, it was announced today.

The announcement by James Keelty Jr., Oriole president, confirmed recent reports that the 41-year-old MacPhail will give up the position of director of player personnel for the New York Yankees to come to Baltimore.

The son of Larry MacPhail, formerly an owner of the Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, will take over the end of this month in time for the winter meeting of baseball in Washington Dec. 1.

Richards had been both general and field manager since he was hired by the Orioles from the Chicago White Sox in 1955. As such, he personally has made practically every decision on signing of new players and trading of old.

Keelty's definition of MacPhail's position set forth a separation of powers.

MacPhail "will have the authority to approve and conclude all major deals and will confer with Manager Richards on any contemplated transfers of player personnel," Keelty stated.

"We feel the new arrangement—one in which MacPhail will function as general manager and Richards will devote his full attention to managing—cannot help but be in the best interests of the Orioles and the fans of Baltimore."

He added that MacPhail will have direct responsibility for all minor league operations, including the signing of young players and of all business details.

Wisconsin Favored to Topple Wildcats; OSU Picked to Win

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a lompie in Spanish. It's futbol in Russian. But football in the U.S. is sheer madness. Especially in making selections. Last week there were 17 mistakes scattered among the 56 picks. Here are the winners this weekend:

Louisiana State over Duke: The LSU Tigers so numerous now they play in complete platoons. Duke, a virtual patsy in its own league, knocks off others with regularity and could make it tough for Louisiana State.

Iowa over Minnesota: In Iowa's dreary days, this was the Hawkeyes' game of games. The Gophers are woefully weak and Iowa steps another stride toward a Big Ten title.

Army over Rice: Dawkins and Walters rejoin Anderson and Caldwell in the Cadets' first string backfield. They will be too fast for Rice.

Wisconsin over Northwestern: Midnight has struck for the Big Ten's Cinderella football team.

Auburn over Mississippi State: The Maroons are disappointing and Auburn has no sympathy.

Oklahoma over Iowa State: Iowa State has scored only two touchdowns on four Big Eight games. A half-touchdown a game average is not enough to beat the Sooners.

Ohio State over Purdue: Purdue will suffer because Northwestern beat the Buckeyes last week.

Mississippi over Houston: The Texans have slipped since their furious start.

Air Force over Denver: Those high flyers remain unbeaten.

Texas Christian over Marquette: Jack Spikes and Hunter Enis have themselves an evening out.

Syracuse over Boston University: The Orangemen are playing for the benefit of bowl scouts.

Cornell over Brown: Tom Skyepeck, Cornell quarterback, has been tearing the Ivy League apart.

Southern California over Washington: Remember when this one sent the entire West Coast into a tizzy?

North Carolina over Virginia: Now that the Carolinians have given Don Knochak the green light they are even tougher than before.

Notre Dame over Pittsburgh: One of Pitt's best postwar teams goes a third week without a victory because of George Izo's passing.

Washington State over Oregon State: Bob Newman's flips will be decisive.

Skipping over the others in a hurry:

Friday
Florida State over Miami, Alabama over Tulane.

Saturday
EAST: Boston College over Detroit, Holy Cross over Colgate, Dartmouth over Columbia, Navy over Maryland, Princeton over Harvard, Rutgers over Lafayette, Pennsylvania over Yale.

SOUTH: The Citadel over Presbyterian, Florida over Georgia, Georgia Tech over Clemson, Kentucky over Vanderbilt, North Carolina State over Mississippi Southern, Virginia Tech over Richmond, South Carolina over Furman, Tennessee over Chattanooga, Virginia Military over Lehigh, Penn State over West Virginia, Davidson over William & Mary.

70,000 to See Cleveland Game

Browns Are Favored Over Detroit Lions

CLEVELAND (AP) — Another crowd of more than 70,000 is expected in Cleveland Stadium Sunday when the Cleveland Browns take on the club that humiliated them 59-14 in the 1957 championship game—the Detroit Lions.

In three games here this season, the Browns have drawn 210,659 fans and the crowds have grown larger with each game. It hit 78,404 for last Sunday's 21-17 loss to the New York Giants. Since they entered the National Football League in 1950, the Browns have had only one bigger home gate—80,698 for a game with San Francisco in 1958.

The Browns are favored by 10 points over the Lions, but the odds-men are going in the fact of history. In four championship play-offs and three regular season meetings, Cleveland has won only once. In pre-season exhibitions, the Detroit have copped eight against three losses and a tie.

Detroit is a better club than its last-position in the NFL's Western Division indicates. The Lions have only one victory and have lost four and tied one.

"We very well could have a 4-2 record," Bud Erickson, assistant general manager of the Lions, said in a talk at the Touchdown Club here Monday.

"Maybe we used up our luck last year. A couple of breaks this season, and we'd be right in contention."

Kerkorian Returns To Assist Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lawyer Gary Kerkorian of Inglewood, Calif., is trading his briefcase for a football to get the Baltimore Colts out of a hole.

It is the second time that the former National Football League quarterback has come out of retirement to give the Colts a hand. This time it was prompted by the loss of Baltimore's brilliant quarterback Johnny Unitas for three weeks and possibly four.

The Colts management confirmed reluctantly that Unitas—who has led the Colts to six straight victories and the top of the Western Conference—suffered three fractured ribs in last Sunday's game with the Green Bay Packers.

They had contended previously that Unitas' injury was only a bruise and that he would be ready for the New York Giants game next weekend.

Kerkorian, No. 1 Colts quarterback in 1954—his first year out of Stanford—flies into Baltimore today. Said General Manager Don Kelleit: "If we can get together on terms, Gary should be with the club for Thursday's practice and I can see no reason why we can't come to a speedy agreement."

Kerkorian's previous rescue of Baltimore was during the 1956 season when quarterback George Snav, from Oregon, banged up his knee. Unitas was an untied player from Louisville then.

The Colts asked Kerkorian, who was a law student at Georgetown University in Washington, D. C., to come back to work. He did. But he threw only two passes before Unitas caught fire. So at season's end, Kerkorian stepped down again, as he had done at the end of the 1955 season.

Boosters To Discuss Football Banquet Plans

The Boosters Club will hold its weekly meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Memorial Building. Plans for the annual football banquet will be discussed.

Salem High School football coach Earle Bruce will speak and discuss movies of last week's win over East Liverpool.

Last Sunday the club sponsored a trip for the high school team to Cleveland where they saw the Browns play the New York Giants. Later they were feted at Petrucci's Spaghetti House on the Benton Road.

Two OSU Students Named On Football Parley Charge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two Ohio State University students were arrested here Tuesday in connection with a football gambling pool, similar to one recently uncovered at the University of Michigan.

Arrest of the two on charges of selling football pool tickets came on the heels of an investigation into a lottery operation on and near the Ohio State campus.

The Columbus Dispatch said it learned that the football pool here is a $10,000-a-week business.

The two students charged by the State Highway Patrol are Jay Franklin Noyes, 21, of Anderson, S. C., and Racey Adair Morris, 27, of Summerfield, Ohio. Both are seniors in the College of Education.

Officers said they got the cards they sold from a mother and son, who were arrested by police vice squadmen over the weekend.

Mrs. Margaret Soteriades, 50, and her son, Christopher, 21, of Columbus, were charged with possession of football pool cards. They are slated for a court hearing Nov. 13.

In a football pool, the buyer of the lottery cards picks certain teams to win, and gives or takes points representing the difference in the score. If he correctly picks the winner of several games, and the point margin—or "spot"—as gamblers call it—is in his favor, he multiplies the amount of his bet.

The football handicap cards distributed here pay as much as 500 to 1 odds if the bettor can pick the winners of 15 games on a 15-game card, with the "spot" in his favor.

An Ohio State University spokesman said the two students involved as far as the school knows, confined their sales to Baker Hall dormitory, where they lived. The spokesman added, "This action could be expulsion, he said."

Lt. George Watts, head of the Columbus police vice squad, said the investigation will be extended to determine if high school students here are engaging in such lotteries.

He said police have no evidence of such student participation here, but that evidence has been uncovered involving high school students elsewhere in Ohio.

Other backs who caught the eyes of the voters were:

Don Allard, Boston College quarterback, completed nine of 17 passes for 168 yards and pulled off a telling interception in a 25-12 victory over College of Pacific.

Dick Bass, COP halfback gained 52 yards in 19 rushes, returned five kicks for 143 yards and scored all 12 points.

Joe Alberty, Arkansas fullback, returned kickoff 77 yards, setting up winning TD in 21-8 upset over Texas A&M.

LSU Center Named Week's Top Lineman

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — "It's a great honor," said a dazed Max Fugler, "but the award should be divided up 33 ways—among all the fellows who made it possible."

The 21-year-old Louisiana State center was stunned when told his devastating linebacking in the 14-0 defeat of previously unbeaten Mississippi won him recognition as Associated Press College Line-man of the Week.

By defeating the sixth-ranked Rebels, LSU clinched another week at the top of The Associated Press college football poll. Mississippi dropped to ninth place.

"You whipped Ole Miss when you stomped them on the goal line," Coach Paul Dietzel told LSU at the half. "Now go out and make it stick."

Early in the second quarter, Mississippi had driven to a first down on the Tiger two.

Bobby Franklin, rebel quarterback, smashed to within a foot of the goal line, with Fugler leading a host of tacklers that stopped him.

Sports Sketches

By GORDON ARNDT

Interest in the forming of three city basketball leagues is pathetic. Some time ago John Dawson, assistant Memorial Building manager, set forth the plans for the formulation of three loops designating them respectively as Class AA, Class A and Class B.

Roughly speaking the Class AA league was to be composed of teams outside Salem while the Class A circuit was for teams inside the city limits. The Class B loop was for players between the ages of 17 and 20.

At an organizational meeting held Monday night at the "ME," six clubs handed in their entry forms and entry fees expressing a desire to compete in the Class A league.

A GRAND TOTAL of but one team each did the same for playing in the Class AA league and the Class B loop.

Salem is supposed to be a basketball-mad town not only from the standpoint of the enthusiasm expressed in scholastic circles but in city-wide sports as well. This turn out was anything but an indication of this reputation.

The city is equipped with a gymnasium although small but adequate. Teams can reserve half the floor for an hour twice a week.

The city extends itself in providing for recreational facilities. Yet the people who are directly involved apparently do nothing in returning the compliment by merely taking advantage of these facilities provided.

Mr. Dawson has now extended the deadline for teams wishing to play "AA" and "B" ball until noon next Monday.

If there are not at least six teams signed in each of the AA and B loops, there will be no such circuits. All action will be contained in the A league. If say four or five clubs have signed which is short of six, then they're out of luck.

AMPLE TIME for aspirants was provided previously and yet Dawson is going ahead and extending the deadline. If there are not six teams signed in the AA and B loops then they don't deserve to play whatsoever. Why should response be so great in A and not AA and B. Enthusiasm in the round ball sport in this Quaker city is supposed to have woven a trance among athletes of all ages. To date there has been no indication of it in the amount of forms and fees received at the Memorial Building. There is a plaque on the wall as you enter the building. It's dedicated to one Joe Kelly with the inscription, "He built the youth of Salem."

I would venture to say if he knew what was going on now he would stir considerably from his eternal resting place.

By next Monday at noon we will know whether he has or not.

SOPH OF THE YEAR—Harry Anderson, above, Philadelphia Phils outfielder, was named 1958 National League Sophomore-of-the-Year in poll among members of Baseball Writer's Association.

Has 101 Points, 5.1 Average

Salem's Biggest Task Friday Is To Stop Leetonia's Bob Osterling

The biggest assignment facing the Salem Quakers Friday night at Reilly Stadium when they tangle with Pat Mancuso's Leetonia Bears will be the stopping of the leading scorer in Columbiana County.

The Red and Black's neighboring rival is endowed with 5-11, 175-pound fullback named Bob Osterling who this season has tallied 15 touchdowns and six conversions for 101 points to rank far and above the No. 2 man in the county point production race, Salem's Ralph Ehrhart.

Ehrhart has 66 points on 10 touchdowns and three conversions. The Quakers' Lou Slaby is sixth in the race with 40 points while their Fred Phillips is tied for ninth with 36 tallies.

Osterling has carried the ball a fantastic 272 times this season while netting 1,379 yards. This is an average of 5.1 per try.

Last week in Leetonia's 30-24 win over Sebring the Bears' bread and butter back toted the leather 42 times while picking up 134 yards. In their 15-14 upset of Poland Osterling carried 46 times for 215 yards.

What is so incredible about this record is that Ehrhart and Slaby have gained 1,357 yards between them and Osterling has topped this himself by 22 yards. However, he has carried 78 more times.

IMAGINE, Osterling has carried the ball more times this year than Ehrhart, Slaby, Phillips and Pat Blount combined.

These four have totaled 271 carries.

Leetonia has tallied 165 points as a team this season and Osterling has 101 of this total.

He has run five conversions and kicked the winning marker against Poland.

The Bears' No. 2 back is half-back Jim Grove, a converted quarterback. He has run the ball 47 times since the shift and has netted 237 yards for a 5.0 average.

This figure is better than the marks now established by Blount and Pete Schmauch.

Bob Osterling

There are four weapons primarily in Leetonia's offense... the running of Osterling and Grove and the passing of quarterback Terry running of Osterling and Grove and Tilley and Grove too.

Grove's being shifted to half-back gives the Bears a chance to throw on pitchouts and end runs. He is a 140-pounder while Tilley goes 125.

Leetonia will be without the services of two regulars Friday. They are ends Tom Haschen and Dave Mackrie. Haschen is 155 and Mackrie 130.

In Tri-County play this year Lisbon, Sebring and Poland had defenses rigged to stop Osterling. They all failed. Friday's match will give fans a chance to see if Salem can stop the county's leading scorer and a player who isn't afraid to run the ball three out of every four plays.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By RUFUS LIDE

I cannot understand why so many waterfowl hunters are so ignorant of the migratory waterfowl regulations.

First thing to know is what may be taken and what is protected by State and Federal laws.

Shooting hours in Ohio are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour before sunset.

Repeating semi-automatic or hand operated repeating shotguns must be plugged with a one piece wooden or metal filler, incapable of being removed without taking the gun apart. Not knowing how to do this is no excuse. There are plenty of gun experts that can show you how. Two shells in the magazine and one in the barrel is all that is permitted.

Most of the local hatched ducks have moved on after two days of barrage by the local nimmers.

Some flight ducks frequent the local lakes but are pretty well educated by the time they reach this section. Right now you are lucky if you manage to get in shooting range.

JUMP SHOOTING along the local streams will be fairly good for a while, but watch out for the wood ducks. You are allowed only one per day.

If you don't know wild ducks from the farmers tame ducks then you had better stay off the streams or you can expect to be faced with an embarrassing situation that hurts the pocketbook.

Deer are certainly getting killed and beat up on Rt. 7 between Horse-shoe Bend and the intersection of Rt. 7 with 30.

Two of the animals went away with broken legs and two were stolen after being killed outright. Any person that takes a deer killed along the highway that was not killed by his motor vehicle is literally "shaking the jail house door."

The owner of the vehicle, if a resident of the state of Ohio may claim the deer, load it in his car and take it home, hog-dress it and notify the game protector, sheriff or highway patrol within 24 hours, and a proper certificate will be issued to the car-owner and he may then do anything he wishes with it except sell it.

If the owner of the car permits another resident to drive his vehicle then only the owner can claim the deer.

IF ANYONE has the license number of the cars that drove away with deer they are not entitled to then let the game protector know about it. One Mahoning County resident paid a $25 fine and costs for picking up a roadside kill that he was not entitled to. I have reasons to believe that one roadside killed deer went across the Ohio River. In this case if the party is ever known not only can the warden in the state when the deer was transported take action but there will be a federal agent ready to bring you back to Ohio where you will be dealt with accordingly in a Federal Court.

I don't see how any man, short of a professional thief, would flirt with state and federal laws. me have it. Remember we don't if you have any information let have to tell where we get our information nor will we tell. This foolishness must be broken up.

Chicago Back Hawks Top Rangers by 4-2

By The Associated Press
The Chicago Black Hawks began the current National Hockey League campaign a month ago with nine new faces.

But Ed Litzenberger, a guy who was with them when they finished in the cellar in the 1957-1958 campaign, has sparked the Hawks into a third-place deadlock with Detroit.

Litzenberger scored twice and had one assist Tuesday night as Chicago downed the New York Rangers 4-2. The setback was the fourth in a row for Phil Watson's fifth-placers.

Litzenberger's output raised his point total to 16 and gave him a one-point lead over Montreal's Jean Beliveau and Boom Boom Geoffrion in the circuit's individual scoring race.

City Cage Loop Deadline Set Monday Noon

The deadline for teams wishing to play basketball in the Salem Class AA and Class B leagues is noon next Monday, John Dawson, assistant Memorial Building manager, announced today.

All entry forms along with the entry fee must be in at that time. Dawson said that if there is not at least six teams signed in each league these loops will be abolished.

At Monday's organizational meeting some 10 teams signed to play in Class A but response for AA and B was poor.

54 Representatives Meeting To Discuss Future of Baseball

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Franchise shifts, league mergers and other changes affecting the entire minor league structure may result from a special meeting of seven high classification circuits which opened today.

Representatives of 54 teams will sit in on the two-day sessions.

The unprecedented gathering was called by President George Trautman of the National Assn. at the request of Bill DeWitt, baseball co-ordinator and administrator of the Major League Fund. DeWitt will report on his findings following an exhaustive summer-long survey of the minor league situation.

The seven leagues involved are the Pacific Coast AAA, American Assn., AAA, International (AAA), Southern Assn. (AA), Texas (AA), South Atlantic (A) and Western (A).

Although no legislative action is expected here, it is DeWitt's belief that several franchise shifts and possibly a league merger may develop after the draft meetings in Washington next month.

"We have learned that several clubs are in favor of becoming affiliated with different leagues," said DeWitt. "It's highly possible that switching of clubs or consolidation of leagues might occur here. With all the teams and leagues representatives on hand, many changes could result. Under baseball law, however, they would not become effective until after the draft meetings in December when players' contracts, frozen since October 15, can again be transferred."

DeWitt said he was not at liberty to reveal what clubs were seeking shifts or which leagues were considering consolidation. It is no secret, though, that the St. Louis Cardinals do not intend to operate their Houston farm unless the Texas League club is promoted to the American Assn. in place of the Louisville club, which recently declared it could not operate next year unless its finances were underwritten by a major league club.

The American Assn. may be faced with another problem if Milwaukee makes good its threat to attempt to move its Wichita franchise to Jacksonville, now in the Sally League. One of the leagues anxious to consolidate is the Western, which has a transportation problem resulting from the more than 1,000-mile spread between Albuquerque and Sioux City.

DeWitt emphasized that any realignment action taken at the meetings or at any subsequent meeting, will be voluntary on the part of the club owners and league officials.

Dow Finsterwald Rated Favorite at Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP)—On the basis of warm-up play, Dow Finsterwald was rated the man to beat today as competition began in the $25,000 Atlanta Open golf tournament.

The talented PGA king from Tequesta, Fla., conquered the new, tricky Cherokee Town and Country Club par 72 course in 69 strokes Tuesday afternoon.

Finsterwald, former Atlanta titlist, faces stiff competition from a star-studded field which includes just about every top name in golf.

Former champions in the four-day 72-hole stroke play tourney are Finsterwald, defending champion Paul Harney of Worcester, Mass., Doug Ford of Paradise, Fla., and Julius Boros of Mid-Pines, N.C.

The field had reached 121 Tuesday night. A last-minute entry could be Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., last year's U.S. Open and World champ.

The only former champion not entered is Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn. He is recovering from an operation.

Stephen Young Pulled Upset Over Good Ohio Vote-Getter

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ohio's new Democratic senator, Stephen M. Young, did what his good friend Harry S. Truman—an expert in such matters—said he would. He bucked the odds, upset the pollsters and beat one of the best vote-getters the Ohio GOP has had in this century, John W. Bricker.

Young started Election Day with a surprise call from former President Truman who told him "things are going along fine—don't worry. You'll get 94,249 over him."

The 69-year-old Clevelander went back to bed some 21 hours later a winner, and with words of gratitude to Ohio voters—and to the 74-year-old scrapper from Independence, Mo.

Young's victory statement was a brief one:

"I am grateful for the confidence that the people of Ohio have shown in me. I will not let them down, nor fail to remember those principles I enunciated during the campaign."

"Above all I am grateful to former President Harry S. Truman who came into Ohio and campaigned in my behalf."

During four terms as an Ohio congressman—at-large—1932, 1934, 1940 and 1948—Young got to know Truman well.

He knew, of course, that Truman was an early riser, but momentarily he was a bit flabbergasted

Key West, Fla. The candidate was appearing at a political rally in Gallopis the night of Sept. 17 when he got the word.

Young waged a vigorous campaign which was in a large measure a restatement of the New Deal-Fair Deal principles he had championed as a congressman and an attack on Bricker as a "nidebound reactionary."

He blasted Bricker for large fees he said the senator's Columbus law firm received from the Pennsylvania Railroad while Bricker was receiving salary as a senator and salary from the law firm. And he accused Bricker of missing many sessions of the subcommittee on atomic energy.

In a tense and dogged way, Young pushed his campaign when it was predicted freely that the outcome of the election would find Ohio voters choosing Democrat V. DiSalle for governor, but passing up his running mate, Young, for the eloquent, silver-haired Bricker.

The business of campaigning is something with which Steve Young has had much experience. Thirteen times he has been on the state ballot. Some of his biggest battles were for the congressman-at-large seat against former U.S. Sen. George H. Bender. He defeated Bender three times, lost to him three times, and in 1940 both were elected to the two at-large posts the state had that year.

Born in Huron County, Young attended public schools in Norwalk, and got his higher education at Kenyon College and Western Reserve University law school.

ROCKET TO SAFETY—A new seat ejection system for pilots has been unveiled by the U.S. Naval Ordnance Test Station in China Lake, Calif. Called RAPEC (rocket-assisted-personnel-ejection-capt), the new device, shown above in a test, rockets a pilot 225 feet skyward, where the seat separates and the pilot drops to earth by parachute. Greatest value of RAPEC is its ability to provide safe seat ejection for jet pilots from ground level as well as high altitude. RAPEC is scheduled for operational use early next year.

Ruritan Convention To Be Well-Attended

A large number of Ruritan Club members are expected to attend the annual district Ruritan convention and banquet to be held at West Local School at East Rochester Friday at 7 p.m., officers of the West Township Ruritan Club, the host club, report.

R. Dale Miller of the Lisbon Club will act as master of ceremonies, and Floyd Lower of Lisbon, district Ruritan governor, will be in charge of the afternoon officers school and business session which will be held in the Methodist Church in East Rochester.

Fred L. Helm of the department of public relations of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. at Akron, will speak at the evening session of his experience in Liberia where he has spent more than 20 years working on Firestone Co. plantations.

Don V. Downing of Franktown, Va., secretary of Ruritan National and one of the founders of Ruritan 30 years ago, will also speak, at both the afternoon and evening sessions.

Mr. Downing will present the community service and attendance awards to the outstanding clubs in the Ohio district.

ROUTES ESTABLISHED

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Post Office, aiming to streamline mail delivery to 27 surrounding counties, has set up new direct routes that eliminate relay to key cities. A spokesman said Monday the deliveries will go direct to Middletown, Lebanon and Foster, Ohio, and Bedford, Ky. The move is part of a plan to have one-day delivery for letters mailed here before 5 p.m.

Six Communities Affected By New System of Dialing

Beginning Sunday morning, the General Telephone Company of Ohio will cut into use the telephone number prefixes for six of its exchanges in the Minerva district area, according to John H. Powell, district commercial manager.

From that date forth, telephone customers in Homeworth, Winona, Hanoverton, East Rochester, North Georgetown, and Paris will be required to dial the assigned exchange name followed by the five digit telephone number which appears in the recently distributed Minerva and nearby communities telephone directory.

Effective at 2:01 a.m. Sunday, General Telephone will cut-over the newly installed central office equipment in each exchange which is required for the use of the two letter prefix.

"All customers are urged to remember to dial the assigned two letter prefix when calling another number on their own exchange or when dialing from one exchange to another," he continued. These changes are designed to conform to the universal type numbering arrangement with each telephone number consisting of two letters and five digits.

The change-over will mean an investment of more than $56,600 in central office equipment throughout the area, the manager said.

Powell explained that General's exchanges are converting to this compatible area numbering plan, which is part of the national toll dialing scheme, on Nov. 16, coincident with the cut-over to 2L-5N in Alliance the same day.

The prefix for the Homeworth exchange, he pointed out, will be L-Udow 6.

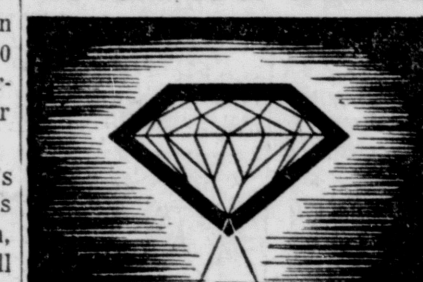

Homeworth Benefited
The installation of 14 free service trunks between Homeworth and Alliance was one of the first major projects started in Homeworth. Homeworth and Alliance subscribers can now enjoy extended area service without the necessity of placing toll calls and contacting the operator. To other points, however, long distance service will still be offered in Alliance for Homeworth subscribers.

An additional 20 subscriber lines and 12 links installed in the Homeworth central office complete the requirements to provide a new numbering system and expand service in the exchange area, Mr. Powell pointed out.

It was also necessary to install new central office equipment to provide the two letter, five digit numbers at Hanoverton, East Rochester, North Georgetown and Paris. The prefixes for each exchange area will be Hanoverton, Capital 3; East Rochester TWINbrook 4; North Georgetown, LAEside 5; and Paris, UNIVERSITY 2.
